

- PROFILE I am a PhD candidate in political science at Yale University. My research explains why clientelism and identities continue to matter in the distributive politics of multiethnic developing democracies, and the consequences of this for democratic accountability, representation, and policymaking. A second strand of my work focuses on partisanship and democratic accountability. I do multi-method research, relying on experiments, regression discontinuity designs, observational analyses, and fieldwork in six Indian districts. I have taught graduate level quantitative methods courses, and undergraduate level comparative politics courses. In 2020, I received a university award, the Prize Teaching Fellowship, for my teaching. I have worked as research assistant for the Metaketa II project. Prior to the PhD, I worked for an Indian political party, fielding and analyzing their surveys in five state elections and a national election.
- EDUCATION Yale University, New Haven, CT
Ph.D Candidate, Political Science 2015 — 2022 (Expected)
M.Phil., M.A., Political Science 2018
Fields: Comparative Politics (with Distinction), Quantitative Methods, American Politics
Dissertation Committee: Gregory Huber, Susan Stokes, Steven Wilkinson (Chair)
- Balliol College, University of Oxford, Oxford, U.K.
B.A., History and Politics (First Class) 2011 — 2013
On an Inlaks Scholarship (10 merit scholarships awarded across India in 2011)
- St. Stephen's College, University of Delhi, Delhi, India
B.A. (Honours), History (First Division) 2008 — 2011
- PUBLICATIONS "Candidate Caste Effects in Uttar Pradesh Elections", Studies in Indian Politics, Vol. 3, Issue 2. (179-197), 2015
- ONGOING PROJECTS Partisan Selectivity in Blame Attribution: Evidence from the COVID-19 Pandemic (with Matthew Graham) (Revise and Resubmit, American Political Science Review)
Winning Support by Distributing Houses? Evidence from India
House Versus Cooking Gas Cylinder: Assessing the Political Impact of Two Benefits
Competition Aversion and Resistance to Re-institutionalization Efforts: The Case of India's Congress Party

PRESENTING WORK	External: NYU-CESS Conference on Experimental Political Science (2021, Poster Session), American Political Science Association Conference (2019), Midwest Political Science Association Conference (2019, 2021), Chicago Area Political and Social Behavior Workshop (2021). Internal: ISPS Experiments Workshop (2019), South Asian Studies Council Brown Bag Colloquium (2018), Leitner Political Economy Seminar (2017)
AWARDS AND FELLOWSHIPS	Prize Teaching Fellowship for 2020-21 (recognizes “outstanding talent” for teaching and is “one of the highest honors that a graduate student can attain at Yale”, $3,000) MacMillan International Dissertation Research Fellowship, 2018-20 (up to $18,000) South Asian Studies Summer Research Awards, 2021 ($3000), 2019 ($2500), 2018 ($2800), 2017 ($2000) Leitner Program in International and Comparative Political Economy Fellowship, 2017 ($5000), 2019 ($5000) Inlaks Scholarship, 2011-13 (£56,140 or \approx $91,500)
TEACHING	Advanced Quantitative Methods (Graduate Course, Instructor: Alex Coppock, Fall 2019) Challenges of Young Democracies (Undergraduate Course, Instructor: Ana de la O, Spring 2019) The Design and Analysis of Randomized Field Experiments (Graduate Course, Instructor: Alex Coppock, Spring 2018) Introduction to Comparative Politics (Undergraduate Course, Instructor: David Simon, Fall 2017)
EMPLOYMENT AND SERVICE	Editorial Assistant to the Co-Editor of the American Political Science Review (Elisabeth Wood) (June 2021 - Present) Research Assistant, E-Gap Metaketa II Steering Committee (Donald Green, Ana de la O, Peter John) (2018-20) Reviewer for American Political Science Review (2021) Graduate Student Coordinator/Organizer, Leitner Political Economy Seminar (Fall 2018), ISPS Experiments Workshop (2018, 2019) Research Assistant, Deborah Beim (2016) and Alexander Coppock (2018) Electoral Analyst, Indian National Congress (August 2013 - April 2015)
FIELDWORK	India: Guntur, Belgaum, Calcutta, Kheda, Madurai, Lucknow, Delhi (18 Weeks, 65 Interviews, Multiple visits between June 2017 and February 2020) I studied how voters form political preferences and parties mobilize support. I focussed on the role of brokers, ethnicity, material benefits, and government programs in elections. I also studied party organizations and functioning. I am creating a qualitative time series, comparing my interviews and field notes with those of Myron Weiner and Atul Kohli. Weiner conducted fieldwork in Guntur, Belgaum, Calcutta, Kheda, and Madurai in the 1960s, Kohli revisited them in the late 1980s.

India: Lucknow and New Delhi (August-September 2012)

I identified the caste of candidates from four major parties in three state elections.

SKILLS

Fluent in English and Hindi

Proficient in R, STATA, and L^AT_EX